Within hours, it was established that none of this was true.

Without social proof, you are rolling the dice and would probably have better odds in Vegas of success.

The hallmark of scientism is its need to discredit perceived threats to its worldview.